By: Tinelle Bustam, VSEM Team Leader

To our valued, El Yunque National Forest permitted outfitter and guides, we present this biannual newsletter! This newsletter is authored, compiled, and published by the Visitor Services and Enjoyment Management Team (VSEM).

The purpose of this newsletter is to strengthen our communication by sharing information and providing the opportunity for your voice to be heard. Specifically, we intend for this newsletter to make available a platform for communication of Forest events, happenings, and news; while also giving you the opportunity to share any questions or comments you may have with Forest staff as well as fellow outfitter and guides.

To do the latter, you will notice in each issue of this newsletter, the "Special Uses Corner." This is where the questions and comments you submit to the newsletter will be responded to.

We encourage you to share your ideas so they may be a part of future newsletters!

While we are currently piloting this newsletter, if we hear from you this endeavor is valuable and has utility to continue, we will do so and perhaps with greater frequency. In the meantime, expect to see this publication sent to you, electronically, twice each year.

Thank you for reading this first edition and we look forward to many more future publications!

Celebrating 50 Years of the Wilderness Act!

By: Victor Cuevas, Park Ranger

What is Wilderness?

In simple terms, wilderness is a natural environment on earth that has not been significantly modified by the impact or actions of civilized human activity. It may also be defined as the most intact, pristine, and undisturbed wild natural areas left on our planet, those last truly wild places that humans do not control and have not developed.

Wilderness is the land that is rare, wild places where one can retreat from civilization, reconnect with the Earth, and find healing, meaning and significance. The term wilderness is defined in the Wilderness Act as "an area where the earth and community of life are untrammelled by man, where man himself is a visitor who does not remain" and "undeveloped Federal land retaining its primeval character and influence, without permanent improvements or human habitation, which is protected and managed so as to preserve its natural conditions."

Wilderness was feared during the earlier years of European settlement in America; when they were clearing forest areas and cultivating natural lands as their way to civilize the wild. Slowly, the public views of wilderness shifted more toward protection orientation; emphasizing sustainable development as well as balance and harmony with nature. The Wilderness Act was signed into a law on September 3 of 1964 by President Lyndon B. Johnson, nine years after the first draft was written. Then, the United States became the first country in the world to define (continued on next page) and designate wilderness areas through law. Subsequently, countries around the world have protected areas modeled after the Wilderness Act. Today, the National Wilderness Preservation System protects 757 federally managed Wilderness areas, a total of 109,511,966 acres in four federal land management agencies: the National Park Service, the U.S. Forest Service, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and the Bureau of Land Management.

El Toro Wilderness

El Toro Wilderness Legislation was initially introduced by Senator Hillary Clinton in 2004. In December, 2005, President Bush signed into law the legislation introduced by Puerto Rico Resident Commissioner Luis Fortuño, designating 10,000 acres of Puerto Rico's Caribbean National Forest/Luquillo Experimental Forest as wilderness; more than one-third of the forest's 28,000 acres.

El Toro Wilderness represents an area of unique ecological and biological diversity; the forests of the most remote upland areas represent some of the best examples of primary forests in Puerto Rico. It is home to the endangered Puerto Rican Parrot, one of the most vulnerable species listed under the Endangered Species Act. It is also habitat for other endangered wildlife species including the Puerto Rican Sharp-shinned Hawk, the Broad-winged Hawk, The Elfin Woods Warbler, and the Puerto Rican Boa.

Wilderness designation is not a prohibition for the use of the land; it's a wise use of their resources in order to protect them for the use and benefits of all future generations. Visiting a wilderness area is like visiting a different country, the natural wild country and to keep it like that there are laws and guidelines to follow, get familiarized with them before your visit. <https://www.wilderness.net/NWPS/pubLawLib>

This year our Nation will celebrate "50 Years of Wilderness" in September 3, 2014. There will be events programmed for the whole year in most of the wilderness areas including ours, El Toro Wilderness. For details of all future events visit the 2014 calendar of events in our Forest website <http://www.fs.usda.gov/elyunque> or at the Wilderness 50th celebration webpage <http://www.wilderness50th.org/events.php>. For additional wilderness resources you may visit the following website www.wilderness.net

Be aware that the Tradewinds trail and El Toro trail are currently closed for public. They are to be repaired in the near future. Ask for their status before planning any hike.

Remember, keep our wilderness wild!

Law Enforcement Safety Tips

By: Carmelo Ortiz, Law Enforcement Officer

The Law Enforcement and Investigations (LEI) unit is an essential part of the Forest Service. It is a diverse workforce committed to integrity, responsibility, and accountability. Our main objectives are to protect the visitors, employees, and natural resources; investigate and enforce applicable laws and regulations which affect El Yunque, and prevent criminal violations through education to visitors and users of applicable laws and regulations on federal lands.

Visiting El Yunque National Forest can be a wonderful experience. Your clients may enjoy recreating by walking on a trail, engaging in bird watch activities, or simply appreciating the view from an overlook. Whatever your activity, chances are there may be other people in the area. Although most people are there to enjoy El Yunque, some are not. The following recommendations are intended to provide you and your clients some precautionary guidelines associated to personal safety.

- Be alert and aware of your surrounding and other people in the area.
- Trust your instincts. If you feel uncomfortable in a place or situation, leave right away and get help if necessary.
- Try to be observant of others and use discretion in acknowledging strangers.

- Best to avoid confrontations.
- Be respectful of your fellow outdoors enthusiasts. Promote the use of good manners when interacting with others.
- Carry a cell phone if coverage is available in the area.
- Carry a noisemaker, such as whistle.
- Best to not pick up hitchhikers.
- Recommend not to make yourself a target by dangling your purse or showing your wallet.
- Suggest to go in pairs or in groups.
- When parking your vehicle, remember to lock it, and do not leave valuables visible.

At El Yunque National Forest, we are committed to the objectives above and encourage you to report any suspicious activity immediately by calling the emergency contacts on the side, or the Forest’s main office at: (787) 888-1880 / 888-1810.

Forest Land Management Plan Revision

By: Myrna Tirado, Visitor Information Technician

The Forest Management Plan is the document that provides a framework to guide the use, protection and management of the Forest's natural and cultural resources. It is broad in scope and provides guidance for the decision-making process for future site-specific projects. The plan also serves to establish sustainable socioeconomic relationships between the Forest and the diverse public interests.

Since the current Forest Plan was approved in 1997, many things have evolved, and the Forest is in the process of updating the plan. In 2012 El Yunque National Forest was selected among eight forests nationwide as "early adopter" to begin the Forest Plan Revision process utilizing a revised planning method.

The process began with a series of listening sessions with the communities and stakeholders to inform them about the new planning process. The Forest Service provides the public with the opportunity to collaborate and be involved throughout the planning process. A diverse citizen's collaboration group has been established to help the Forest outreach to the community.

A group of Forest specialists recently completed an assessment review of the 1997 Forest Plan environmental, social, economic, and cultural conditions and opportunities of the Forest. The assessment is now available for your review and comments at the following web address:

www.fs.usda.gov/elyunque/planning/assessment

The Outfitters and Guides, as regular users of the Forest, are encouraged to look into these reports, become familiar with the information, learn about any changes that the Forest has experienced and provide comments or suggestions throughout the process. Remember that future decisions on how the Forest is managed will depend on the direction established in the Forest Management Plan. The opportunity to participate in forums and comment on the planning process should not be missed. To learn more about the Plan process and timelines, please check the Forest website at

Coming Soon!

By: Jose "Pepe" Ortega, Recreation Program Leader

The Forest is in the final review process for the new trailhead signs, forest maps and information panels and flip books at El Portal. The consultant who designed the signs located on the elevated walkway was also engaged in this project. The new trail signs and maps will have photos and updated interpretive information. The existing sign posts will be repaired and painted as part of this project.

The new signs at El Portal will include updated timeline, a revised map of Puerto Rico, and other nature destinations such as state forests, lakes and light towers. The flip books will also have a new design layout and new information and themes. There will also be a revised Forest Map at the Portalito with new information for the Forest visitor's.

The new signs will complement the layout and design which were used in the interpretive signs that are located along the El Portal Elevated Walkway. The signs should be ready for installation this summer.

Keep on the look-out for these new interpretive amenities to be located throughout the Forest.

Leave No Trace at El Yunque NF

By: Cynthia Manfred, Park Ranger

Leave No Trace, or LNT refers to a set of outdoor ethics and also to a nonprofit organization that teaches those principles. LNT principles are designed to promote conservation in the outdoors. The organization LNT exists to educate people about their recreational impact on nature as well as the principles of LNT to prevent and minimize such impacts.

Leave No Trace is built on Seven Principles: Plan Ahead and Prepare, Travel and Camp on Durable Surfaces, Dispose of Waste Properly, Leave What You Find, Minimize Campfire Impacts, Respect Wildlife, and Be Considerate of Other Visitors. The Seven Principles have been adapted to different activities, ecosystems and environments.

Plans to remove trash bins from the Forest's recreational areas will be progressively implemented and education will be an integral part of the plan, where entities like yours will play an essential role so that visitors of El Yunque take full responsibility for their waste in new ways. It implies that all objects, materials or substances that came in with each visitor, must be removed from the Forest as they leave.

On a larger scope, redefining our interactions with the natural world and the impact we have as recreationists is a concept coming on strong in the 21st Century. Certainly LNT is a concept to make our own. To learn more about the Leave No Trace principles and techniques, please visit www.lnt.org

Did you know that cigarette butts are the most frequently littered item in the US and across the globe?

According to a research made by Keep America Beautiful (KAB), 95% of the cigarette filters are composed of cellulose acetate, a form of plastic which do not degrade quickly, and persist in the environment. This causes other impacts such as toxic chemicals transferred into the ground or watersheds, possible fire threat when not disposed properly, and ingestion by marine and wildlife when mistaken as food. Please help us transmit this message throughout your clients in order to keep our recreation areas litter free.

Two New Books About El Yunque

By: Zoraida Rosa, Eastern National Caribbean Regional Manager

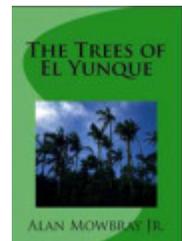

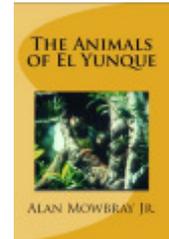

For a decade, visitors have regularly consulted the El Yunque National Forest website informative Wildlife Facts and Endemic Plant Facts features to research school projects or just to find out more about the remarkable tropical forest animals and plants that populate El Yunque. These facts had been compiled by forest volunteer natural history writer: Alan Mowbray Jr. who upon his recent retirement released two essential guidebooks: The Animals of El Yunque, and The Trees of El Yunque (2012).

Intended to fit easily into a visitor's pocket or backpack, each book's concise species taxonomy, descriptions, and habitat definitions are accompanied by full-color photos and a whole lot of details, not found elsewhere. The species described in the books are those that forest visitors are most likely to encounter and want to learn more about while hiking El Yunque's lush rainforest nature trails.

Visitors can purchase these guide-books at the El Portal Rainforest Center's Eastern National Bookstore and satellite locations throughout the Forest. Eastern National Books store has a large amount of publications and merchandise of which many are only found in our stores. We want to welcome you and your clients to our book stores and see what we have new.

For additional information regarding these publications and other products you may contact the store by calling at: (787) 887-0032

ANSWERS: 1) As you travel along the PR-191 corridor, trees are large and tall at lower elevations, while at higher elevations trees are smaller. This shift in size and height mirrors the columns at El Portal. The columns at the entrance are large and tall, while at the columns at the upper plaza columns are shorter. 2) Tree cricket/cicada "tribicen pruinosa" 3) Candlewood tree/Tabonuco "dacyrodes excelsa" 4) Dwarf coqui/coqui duende "eleutherodactylus unicolor" 5) Luquillo Mountain babyboot orchid "lepanthes eltoroensis" 6) Forest Service: 30% 7) Trick question! All snails are hermaphrodites, i.e. they have the reproductive organs of both sexes and all have the capability of reproducing and laying eggs 8) Eight: Canovanas, Rio Grande, Luquillo, Fajardo, Ceiba, Juncos, Las Piedras, and Naguabo. 9) Another trick question! There is no Bird-of-Paradise "strelitzia reginae" in the Forest. 10) To be determined. This is one example of a number that we are actively seeking as we move forward with our carrying capacity study.

Special Uses Corner

By: Christina Henderson, Special Uses Program Lead

Christina Henderson

Greetings. I'm Christina Henderson, and I'm pleased to be a part of El Yunque staff. After obtaining my Bachelor's and Master's degrees in Urban Forestry from Southern University, I began working with the Forest Service in 2006. In 2009, I began work in Special Use Administration, and in 2011, I completed the Beginning Lands and Realty Academy in Phoenix, Arizona. I worked in the Kisatchie National Forest in Pineville, Louisiana before coming to El Yunque.

For me, the natural beauty that is being protected and admired in our national forests is unparalleled. I am grateful to our outfitters and guides, who work so hard to introduce the public to this natural beauty while keeping in mind the safety of our visitors and the importance of conserving the environment. I am also cognizant of the work that you do that is beyond what's required – the background research about the flora and fauna of the area, being helpful and positive with all of our guests, and encouraging good stewardship of the Forest in the many different ways that often go unnoticed. For all of these things, I thank you and am proud to be working with you.

I want to take this moment to inform you that not only are we exploring ways to streamline our permit process, but we are developing this publication that features detailed information about the Forest.

This publication will assist you in informing guests about the Forest, and also in maintaining a sense of uniformity and credibility among all of our hardworking outfitters.

I look forward to talking with you in our Open House, which will be held in June 19, 2014. The Open House will be the forum in which you can share your comments, questions, and concerns regarding the important work that you do here at El Yunque.

If you have any individual questions and concerns before then, please do not hesitate to contact me at (787) 888-5611 or by email at christinachenderson@fs.fed.us

Prepare to Be Trash Free!

By: Claudia Hartley, Visitor Services Fellow

This summer we are implementing the first phase of our Forest Trash Free Zone Initiative.

A Trash Free Zone is an area in the Forest where visitors are expected to practice Leave No Trace ethics by carrying out all the trash they generate. Trash cans will be removed from these areas and visitors will need to plan ahead when bringing consumable items into a Trash Free Zone.

Overflowing trash cans detract from the scenic quality of a visitor's experience at El Yunque and damage our Wild and Scenic Rivers. Please help conserve the health and beauty of our Forest by educating your clients about the Trash Free Zone Initiative.

Trash Free Zone FAQs:

- Where is the Trash Free Zone?: The first Trash Free Zone includes La Mina Falls, Big Tree Trail, and La Mina Trail.
  - When does the Trash Free Zone Initiative begin? The first zone will be established in June. Trash cans will be removed from this area in October.
  - Who benefits from a Trash Free Forest? The visitor, the forest, and the Forest Service all benefit from reduced trash in El Yunque.

Tip: Remember to bring a trash bag. If your clients will be taking snacks or other trash-generating items into La Mina Falls, please plan ahead and bring a bag to collect their trash. Remember: trash cans will soon be removed from this area and visitors need to carry out everything they bring in.

For more information on the Trash Free Zone Initiative, please contact Forest Fellow Claudia Hartley at claudiaehartley@fs.fed.us.
