Common Name: A Cave Obligate Springtail

Scientific Name: Entomobrya troglodytes

Recommendation: Insufficient information available at this time

Recommendation Rationale:

Two caves in South Dakota and Nebraska have documented populations, and the species is considered likely to be found in other caves in the geographic region. No occurrences are documented on NFS lands. No information is available on abundance, trends, specific habitat associations, and threats to this species. There is insufficient information to determine whether there may be a viability concern in R2 for this species.
