

Sly Guard Cabin

Eldorado National Forest

Placerville Ranger District

The Sly Guard Cabin was constructed in the early 1940s by the Forest Service as living quarters for rangers "on guard" in the Sly Park area of the Eldorado National Forest. Sly Guard Cabin sits at nearly 3,600 feet in elevation and is surrounded by Ponderosa pines and Cedars. During the summer, the elevation and plentiful shade keeps the cabin cool on warm days.

Sly Guard Cabin is still used today by forest visitors looking for a summer retreat. (Reservations required.) The cabin is less remote than other cabins in the forest, includes a handful of modern conveniences, and is close to attractions such as Sly Park Reservoir (Jenkinson Lake), Apple Hill, the historic mining town of Coloma, and the many wineries in the region.

The area provides a multitude of recreational opportunities as well including hiking, mountain biking, gold panning, and picnicking. There is a horseshoe pit on the cabin grounds. A swimming hole can be found along Sly Park Creek and Sly Park Reservoir is open to boating and angling.

Amenities

The 600 sq. ft. single story cabin has a living room, kitchen, one bedroom, and one full bathroom.

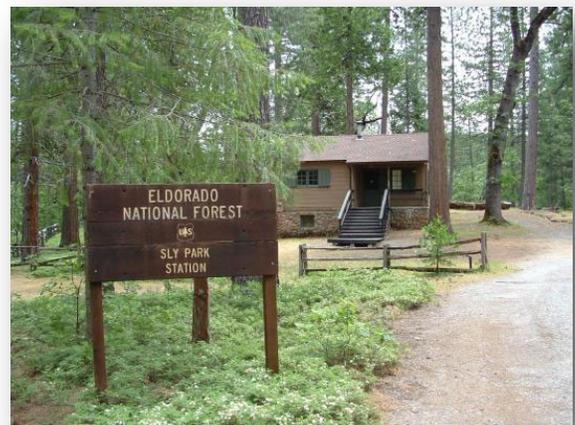

There is hot and cold running water in the kitchen's double-basin sink and in the bathtub/shower and sink in the bathroom. All open water sources around the cabin, such as streams and creeks, should be considered contaminated. Water from these sources should be properly treated by either boiling or some form of filtration before being consumed.

The cabin has sleeping accommodations for four with two single beds in the bedroom and one full size futon in the living room. Guests are required to bring bedding or sleeping bags as these items are not provided. The cabin and grounds are enclosed by a split cedar fence. There is enough room on the ground to accommodate two tents, one RV/trailer/camper, and two boats.

There is a three vehicle limit (including tow vehicles) and a twelve persons total occupant limit, cabin and grounds combined.

The cabin contains a four-person dining table, an assortment of chairs, a couch/futon, a television and DVD player, and a telephone for local calls. There is also a wood stove and a propane wall heater for chillier nights and mornings.

The kitchen has an electric stove, microwave, coffee maker, and refrigerator. There is an assortment of pots and pans, utensils, cookware, and other necessary kitchen items. No open flames, backpacking stoves, or Coleman stoves, etc. are permitted inside the cabin. A charcoal barbecue is stored in the mudroom for use outside the building. A food preparation table, picnic table, and group fire ring are also found outside on the cabin grounds.
