Welcome to the Manti-La Sal National Forest
Moab-Monticello District

The Manti-La Sal National Forest is a diverse landscape. Whether you enjoy deep sandstone canyons, mountainsides, mesas, valleys or streams, you can find a favorite getaway here. The Moab-Monticello District consists of two separate "forests," the La Sal Mountains near Moab and the Abajo Mountains/Ell Ridge and Dark Canyon Wilderness near Monticello and Bluffing. These Manti-La Sal National Forest landscapes are ready on the high plains rising above the desert below. They are well-known for stunning vistas and great recreational pursuits. Evidence of vast prehistoric lives is found throughout the Manti-La Sal National Forest. However, the Moab-Monticello District contains today the Forest offers people a retreat from the hurry of modern life. If you seek peace and quiet, an opportunity to see some of the most remarkable views in Utah, or engage in driving, hiking, biking, hunting, fishing, camping or climbing, you can find these here.

Respect and Protect Archeological Sites

As a Manti-La Sal National Forest is rich in archeological sites and artifacts. Many are fragments of past prehistoric and historical cultures. Archeological and biological sites give us a sense of where we came from, who we are, and where we are going. Care should be taken to protect these resources by:

- Stay off from walls and roofs.
- Do not touch or take artifacts. Even if it is just a fragment of a stone moldering in the floor, or a small stone with a hole, it may represent a significant piece of history.
- Do not damage or touch vegetation, rocks, or artifacts.
- Do not run off the trail, walk on secluded trails, or artifacts.
- Do not remove rocks or artifacts.

HOW TO USE THIS MAP

The Travel Map is compared to the Forest Motor Vehicle Use Map (MVUM). It is designed to give you more information about the landscape where you are planning your trip. Supplemental trails and information are only available on the MVUM. This Travel Map does not display non-motorized trail or road information. For detailed trail and road information, please refer to the MVUM.

The Travel Map is a legal copy of the Manti-La Sal National Forest Motorized Tract Map. It is not intended to serve as a legal description of Federal and State Lands. The MVUM is a published map that is used to describe Federal, State and non-Federal lands where motor vehicles are allowed. In general, roads and trails on the Tract Map are representative of the public road and trail system.

The Travel Map is intended for the use of the public. The Forest Supervisor may issue additional use areas to the public. Typically areas are available for public use in the Canyon (Ride and Hike) or Buckboard (MTB or Off-Highway) use areas. The Travel Map is not exhaustive. Additional road or trail use areas may be available. Please check with the Forest or U.S. Forest Service for latest information. Additional information can be found online at forestservice.gov or usforestservice.gov.

Respect and Protect Archeological Sites

In 1986 Dark Canyon became the first major archeological district in Utah to be established by the Federal government. The Dark Canyon District, located in the northeast corner of the state, is the largest archeological district in the United States. It is composed of over 2500 square miles of archeological sites, including the famous Dark Canyon Ruin.

An archeological site is defined as any area containing archeological remains. The Dark Canyon District contains a vast array of archeological remains, including the famous Dark Canyon Ruin, which is located in the northeast corner of the state.
