The document contains a map and tables, but the text on the page is not legible. The map appears to be a topographical or cartographic representation, likely showing various trails and areas within a specific region. The tables might contain data related to the map, such as coordinates, designations, or other information pertinent to the areas shown on the map.