Starr Snow Bowl sledding hill now open to the public

John Day, Ore. – The Malheur National Forest is pleased to announce that the Starr Snow Bowl (Starr Ridge sledding hill) is now open to the public.

The area around the Starr Snow Bowl has been cleared of hazards created as a result of the Canyon Creek Complex Fire and is now open for use by winter sport enthusiasts.

While the Snow Bowl has been opened, Forest Supervisor Steve Beverlin would like to remind folks that an area closure remains in effect due to hazards created by the Canyon Creek Complex.
