The inmates generally work 6-7.5 hours per day, the actual times vary, depending on travel, team preparation, and security factors. Safety and security is paramount to the program and is stressed throughout each project. A safety meeting and project discussion is held prior to every project and inmates are expected to follow all instructions. The inmates are carefully selected and provided a thorough orientation to the program. The Chain Gang handbook is given to each inmate outlining program rules, safety and security practices, procedures, and work performance expectations. The Chain Gang Deputy is responsible for coordinating and scheduling various work projects with the U.S. Forest Project Representative. Campground maintenance will include removal of litter, natural debris, fire pit cleaning and rebuilding, removal of overgrown vegetation and noxious weeds, painting and repair of picnic tables, restrooms and other established buildings, planting of native plants in habitat restoration areas, installation and maintenance of signage, build additional campsites and other tasks as requested.

17. List known partnerships or collaborative opportunities. US Forest Service, Clallam County Noxious Weed Board, Washington State Fish and Wildlife, Tribal Governments, Clallam County Road Department and volunteers such as Back Country Horseman.

18. Identify benefits to communities. Utilization of voluntary inmate laborers, who are returning a portion of the cost of their incarceration back to the community, while earning extra good-time off their sentence, is a benefit to the County, local municipalities, and the U.S. Forest Service. In addition, a higher sense of self-esteem, better work ethic, and improved behavior during incarceration are noticeable benefits to the program participants. Completion of the Olympic Discovery Trail to the coast will benefit local residents, tourism, and local communities by offering a safe outdoor recreational trail system used by walkers, bicycle riders and horseback riders.

19. How does the project benefit federal lands/resources? Many of the project proposals could and would not be accomplished without the availability and utilization of the Chain Gang due to budget restraints and economic realities. Chain Gang projects help to provide access, maintain, and improve safety of the U.S. Forest Service road system, trails, campgrounds, and facilities. Many of the roads, trails, campgrounds and other facilities of the U.S. Forest Service will fall into marginal and deteriorating condition if not maintained and pose a risk of loss of use, access, value, and potential environmental damage to infrastructure and the ecosystem if not properly maintained.
