Avalanche Field Observer Volunteer Training

The Flathead National Forest and Glacier Country Avalanche Center are hosting a training workshop for volunteers interested in submitting field observations on area winter backcountry conditions. The training will be Wednesday, February 18, 6:30-8pm at the Forest Service Office in Kalispell, 650 Wolfpack Way.

The course will help volunteers learn about what field observation information to collect, collection techniques and standards, and the process for posting the information on the Glacier Country Avalanche Center website.

Volunteers are required to have the background and knowledge equivalent to completing a Level 1 avalanche education course prior to the field observer training. For more information visit www.glacieravalanche.org or contact the Flathead National Forest at 758-5284.
