This was the “Northwoods Hazardous Fuels Reduction Project.” The purpose was to treat high fuel hazard conditions with a combination of several proven methods (such as handpiling/burning and mastication) near the communities of Northwoods and O’Brien Mountain Estates, which were identified as ‘Communities at Risk.’

These goals were met through a balance between fire suppression capability and fuels management investments that were cost effective and met ecosystem objectives, as well as assisted the homeowners in the area, if a fire were to break out.
