Special Screening of Aldo Leopold Documentary at Klamath Siskiyou Arts Center in Happy Camp

Happy Camp, CA—On June 27, 2014, at 8:45 pm the Klamath National Forest and the Klamath Siskiyou Arts Center (KSAC) will host a free screening of the film Green Fire, the first full-length, high-definition documentary film ever made about legendary conservationist Aldo Leopold and his environmental legacy. The screening is being held in conjunction with a KSAC, Food Friday Dinner which begins at 7:00pm. Details on the dinner can be found on the KSAC website: <http://www.ksartcenter.org>

Green Fire illustrates Leopold's continuing influence by exploring current projects that connect people and land at the local level. Viewers will meet urban children in Chicago learning about local foods and ecological restoration. They'll learn about ranchers in Arizona and New Mexico who maintain healthy landscapes by working on their own properties and with their neighbors, in cooperative community conservation efforts. They'll meet wildlife biologists who are bringing back threatened and endangered species, from cranes to Mexican wolves, to the landscapes where they once thrived. The Green Fire film portrays how Leopold's vision of a community that cares about both people and land—his call for a land ethic—ties all of these modern conservation stories together and offers inspiration and insight for the future.

The Aldo Leopold Foundation's mission is to inspire an ethical relationship between people and land through the legacy of Aldo Leopold. Leopold regarded a land ethic as a product of social evolution. "Nothing so important as an ethic is ever 'written,'" he explained. "It evolves 'in the minds of a thinking community.'"
