

TRAILS
SUPERSTITION WILDERNESS

There is a network of some 170 miles of “system” trails serving the Superstition Wilderness Area and contiguous areas. Their condition varies from satisfactory to very poor. All trails are closed to motor vehicles and mechanical transport such as bikes.

Use a great deal of caution when traveling on backcountry trails such as this one and be aware of the risks you assume.

A few brief comments are in order about the following trail:

Hoolie Bacon Trail 111: 4 miles long. A little-used trail named after an old-time local rancher. Some sections may be overgrown and difficult to follow. Elevation: 3,200 -3,920 feet. Termini: Trail 106 south of Tortilla TH, and Trail 107.
