Announcer:
Heading out to go camping this weekend? Did you know that over thirteen million people go camping each year in the United States? And most of them will build a campfire? Campfires are fun, but those small fires can turn into a large wildland fire in a hurry.

(Noise: fire engine siren)
Don’t forget to put your campfire out tonight. It could be in your backyard tomorrow by not properly putting out your campfire when you’re finished, small embers can blow into the brush and start a wildfire. You could be responsible for the costs for putting out that fire and any damages it may cause.

This message was brought to you by the US Forest Service.