

Avalanche – Podcast

Announcer:

Every winter over thirty people die in avalanches in the United States and many more have very close calls. Mountains in winter can be as dangerous as they are exhilarating. Check the avalanche danger before you go. It may save your life or your friend's life. Remember ninety percent of all avalanche victims die in slides triggered by themselves or a member of their group. To get up to date avalanche danger information visit your local avalanche center online. Remember your life is in your hands.

This message is brought to you by the US Forest Service.