Salmon-Challis National Forest

<http://www.fs.fed.us/r4/sc>

The Salmon-Challis National Forest covers over 4.3 million acres in east-central Idaho. The Forest is bordered by the Bitterroot Range on the border with Montana on the east, and to the west includes over 1.3 million acres of the Frank Church--River of No Return Wilderness. There are currently six administrative units on the Forest: Salmon-Cobalt, Challis/Yankee Fork, Lost River, Middle Fork, North Fork and Leadore Ranger Districts.

Rugged and remote, this country offers adventure, solitude and breathtaking scenery. The Forest also contains Mt. Borah - Idaho's tallest peak, the Wild & Scenic Salmon River and the Middle Fork of the Salmon River and the Frank Church River of No Return Wilderness Area. The area is a highly desired destination for hunting, fishing, white-water rafting and the many other popular recreational pursuits. The Forest features diverse, rough topography, geologic conditions, and miles of streams with anadromous fish spawning habitat creating a highly complex land management situation. The Forest Supervisors Office is located in Salmon, Idaho.

South Zone

Challis/Yankee Fork Ranger District Middle Fork Ranger District Lost River Ranger District

The South Zone encompasses 2.7 million acres and includes portions of the Middle Fork Salmon River, Salmon River, Pahsimeroi River, Big Lost River, and Little Lost River basins. The South Zone also has the nine highest peaks in Idaho, hundreds of mountain lakes, and thousands of miles of streams and rivers.

Recreation is an important component of public uses within the zone, including hunting, fishing, floating, camping, hiking, horseback riding, ATV and motorcycle trail riding. A large variety of wildlife and fish occur in the zone including mule deer, elk, moose, wolves, big horn sheep, and over 20 species of fish.

Permitted uses include outfitters and guides, grazing, communication sites, education organizations, and fire wood and timber products.
