

Chugach National Forest: Forest Plan Revision

Phase 1 – Assessment: Winter/Spring 2013

The Chugach National Forest is beginning a three year process to revise its forest plan. Please get involved in the process, and provide feedback at this early stage on how you use the forest, what you see as emerging issues and trends, and the best ways for you to be involved. Your input will help inform management of the forest over the next fifteen years. We want to hear from you!

If you can't attend one of the February or later Spring meetings (or even if you do), please share your perspective on the topics below. You can go to the plan website and fill out this form and submit it electronically, or mail it to the office below.

Thank you for sharing your views.

1. Use + Vision

- How do you use the forest today? What are barriers to use?
- How do you believe use and users change over the next 20 years?

2. Assessment: Emerging Trends + Issues

- How do preliminary USFS assessment findings match your understanding of what is happening on the Forest? (see a copy at the public forums, or on the Chugach Plan Revision website)
- Are there other issues in your community or on the Forest that should be considered?

3. Communication + Public Participation

- What is the best way to engage your community in the Forest Plan Revision process?
- What are the best ways to share information and keep people informed?

Any other comments?
