The Trailhead: From the junction of Utah Highway 22 and the Mt. Dutton Road (No. 125) (out of Antimony), go east on the Mt. Dutton Road to Road No. 126. Turn right and go northwest on Road No. 126 to Road No. 431. Turn left and follow Road No. 431 southwest approximately 0.75 miles to the trailhead. The trailhead is on the south side of the road.

The Trail: This trail is steep and goes through mixed confer stands, some small clearings, and meadows in the Hoodle Creek area. There are a number of undeveloped viewpoints where spectacular views of the Sevier Plateau cliffs (west side), rock walls, and ledges can be observed. In the past, timber harvests have taken place making the trail difficult to follow in some areas.
