The Region

The Intermountain Region in Ogden, Utah provides administrative oversight and support to thirteen National Forests located in Utah, Nevada, eastern California, western Wyoming, and southern and central Idaho. The region covers 31,816,792 acres in the National Forest Systems. There are approximately 2200 permanent employees in Region 4.

The Forest

The Manti-La Sal National Forest’s 1.4 million acres are scattered through some of the most wide-open spaces in Utah and parts of Colorado (about 17,000 square miles). It features high forested areas, with glacial bowls and alpine peaks, and lower desert elevations strewn with remnants of ancient cultures. The Forest includes the Dark Canyon Wilderness Area and is bordered by Arches National Park, Canyonlands National Park, and the San Rafael Swell. It is not far from the Glen Canyon National Recreation Area, and Lake Powell.

Rock climbers come from throughout the world to test their skills on the conglomerate rock walls of Maple Canyon in the Sanpitch Mountains of central Utah. Snowkiters have discovered the unique pairing of wind currents and large snowbowls on the Wasatch Plateau. Not far away, Joes Valley is loved by bouldering enthusiasts and kayakers. To the southeast, cyclists take to the trails of the beautiful La Sal Mountains, which provide an island of cool green towering above the red rock deserts of Moab. American Indians revere many sacred sites in the Abajo Mountains found in the far reaches of southeastern Utah.
