

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Maria Cantwell
United States Senate
511 Hart Senate Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Senator Cantwell:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

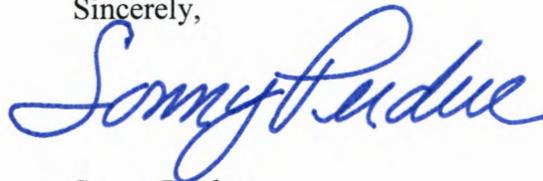

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Maria Cantwell
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Sonny" being larger and more prominent than the last name "Perdue".

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Ruben Gallego
U.S. House of Representatives
1131 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Congressman Gallego:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

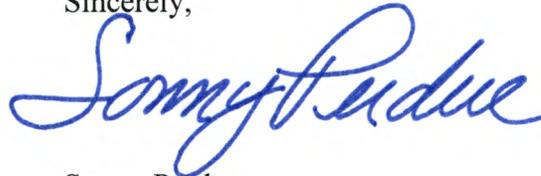

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Ruben Gallego
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Tom Udall
United States Senate
531 Hart Senate Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Senator Udall:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

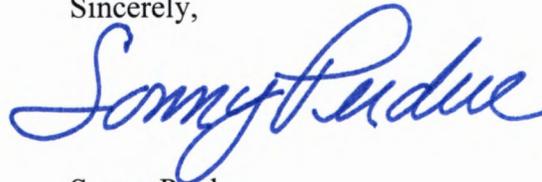

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Tom Udall
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "S".

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Raúl Grijalva
U.S. House of Representatives
1511 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Congressman Grijalva:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

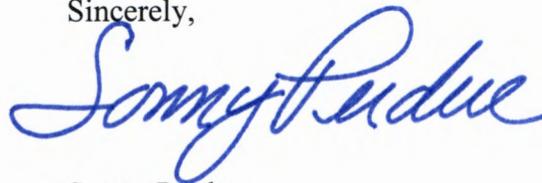

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Raúl Grijalva
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

The Honorable Jeffrey Merkley
United States Senate
313 Hart Senate Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

AUG 09 2019

Dear Senator Merkley:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement, and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a state-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

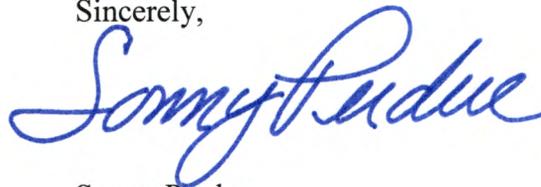

We continue to expect that publication of the Draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will again host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Jeffrey Merkley
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Diane DeGette
U.S. House of Representatives
2111 Rayburn House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Congresswoman DeGette:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

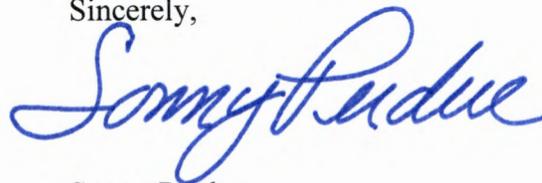

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Diane DeGette
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Debra Haaland
The U.S. House of Representatives
1237 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Congresswoman Haaland:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

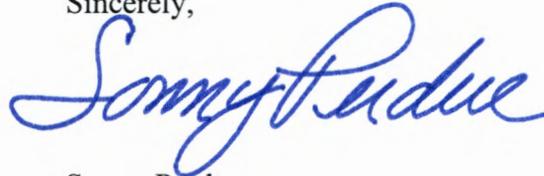

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Debra Haaland
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a large initial "S".

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Jared Huffman
The U.S. House of Representatives
1527 Longworth House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Congressman Huffman:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

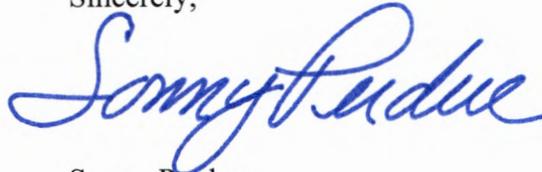

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Jared Huffman
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Sonny" and last name "Perdue" clearly legible.

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

United States Department of Agriculture

Office of the Secretary
Washington, D.C. 20250

AUG 09 2019

The Honorable Alan Lowenthal
U.S. House of Representatives
108 Cannon House Office Building
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Congressman Lowenthal:

Thank you for your letter of July 11, 2019, cosigned by your colleagues, sharing your views on the national 2001 Roadless Rule and the Alaska state-specific roadless rulemaking process currently being conducted by U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Forest Service.

In your letter, you expressed support for continued application of the 2001 Roadless Rule to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. You also shared concerns about the rulemaking timeline, process, and Tribal and public engagement and requested additional public meeting locations with an extension to the upcoming public comment period. Agency leaders are available to meet at your convenience to discuss issues raised in your letter.

There has been disagreement about management of the Tongass National Forest under the national 2001 Roadless Rule since it was promulgated. In response to the State of Alaska's petition for rulemaking, USDA and the State of Alaska have agreed that the economic, environmental, and social issues surrounding management of roadless areas on the Tongass National Forest warranted state-specific rulemaking. USDA is committed to conducting this rulemaking as expeditiously as possible. We will continue to provide multiple opportunities for Tribal consultation and public involvement throughout the process. Our goal for this process is a State-specific rule that addresses economic development and other needs and conserves roadless areas for future generations.

I value USDA's consultation with Tribes in Southeast Alaska as we strive for shared stewardship of these significant landscapes and special places. USDA's Office of the Under Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment remains available to discuss Tribal concerns regarding the Alaska-specific Roadless Rule. Forest Service leaders nationally and in the Alaska region will continue to reach out to discuss additional ways to engage in meaningful consultation.

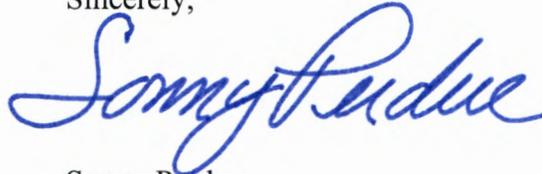

We continue to expect that publication of the draft Environmental Impact Statement this summer with a 60-day public comment period will meet the spirit and letter of applicable regulations governing public engagement. The Forest Service will, again, host community meetings across Alaska and in Washington, D.C., to provide information and answer questions. Written comments will be accepted by mail, email, and through online portals. This approach to rulemaking aims to build and maintain the broad coalition of support necessary to achieve a long-term, durable approach to roadless area management that accommodates the unique biological, social, and economic situation in and around the Tongass National Forest. I encourage you to continue to participate in this process by providing your comments.

The Honorable Alan Lowenthal
Page 2

I share your appreciation of the many benefits America's National Forests provide to residents and visitors alike. The Forest Service is working to ensure that we continue to contribute to the resilience of forests and communities in Alaska and across the country by investing in sound forest stewardship in partnership with states, Tribes, local governments, and partners. In meeting these needs, the Forest Service will uphold its mission to sustain the health, diversity, and productivity of our Nation's forests and grasslands to meet the needs of future and present generations.

Thank you for your interest in the management of the Tongass National Forest. I appreciate your participation in this process. A similar response is being sent to your colleagues.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sonny Perdue". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large, looping "S" at the beginning.

Sonny Perdue
Secretary

Congress of the United States
Washington, DC 20510

July 11, 2019

The Honorable Sonny Perdue
Secretary
The United States Department of Agriculture
1400 Independence Ave
Washington, DC 20250

Dear Secretary Perdue,

As members of Congress interested in protecting our public lands and environment, we are writing to express strong opposition to efforts to roll back the Forest Service's Roadless Area Conservation Rule (Roadless Rule). Promulgated in 2001, the Roadless Rule enjoys, today as then, broad public support. Roadless areas protect clean drinking water sources for tens of millions of Americans, some of our most outstanding fish and wildlife habitat, cultural values and locations of great tribal importance, and recreational opportunities that generate major economic benefits for rural communities. Their protection nationwide provides bulwarks against climate change and unnatural wildfire spread, while saving taxpayers billions of dollars. The Rule incorporates—and the Forest Service has a consistent record of implementing—allowances for many kinds of localized commercial and management activity as well as public highways and other road construction that is genuinely in the public interest.

Of particular concern to us is the minimal level of public and tribal engagement and the expedited pace taken by the Forest Service in developing Alaska-specific Roadless Rule exemptions in response to that state's petition. Alaska's Tongass National Forest is our country's largest national forest at nearly 17 million acres, 9.2 million acres of which are protected by the Roadless Rule. This region is home to some of the largest remaining tracts of old-growth temperate rainforest in the world, and provides essential habitat for grizzly bears, wild salmon, wolves, bald eagles, and many other species.

The agency's scoping meetings in Alaska were characterized by an overwhelming majority of participants rejecting upending the Roadless Rule on the Tongass. The same was true of the only scoping meeting held outside of Alaska, in Washington, DC. Having public meetings in only Alaska and Washington, D.C. ignores the fact that the Tongass National Forest is made up of public lands cherished by all Americans nationwide. During the upcoming Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) comment period, we request additional meetings around the country, including in Seattle, WA, Portland, OR, Minneapolis, MN, Denver, CO, San Francisco, CA, Albuquerque, NM and Washington, DC, to provide the national forest's actual owners, the citizens of America, an opportunity to voice their opinion.

Along with holding meetings in locations that give people who care about the Tongass an opportunity to voice their opinion, we want to ensure those voices are not only heard, but are truly listened to throughout the process. We are concerned the scoping meetings did not provide those who attended adequate opportunity to have their comments formally recorded to ensure they were carried forward into the environmental review process. The meetings that will occur once a DEIS is released need to be structured so that people have an adequate opportunity to review the DEIS first, and then provide an opportunity to offer comments on the record, rather than just receive information.

In addition, we are extremely concerned the DEIS is scheduled for release in July/August 2019, which coincides with the peak fishing and tourism seasons, as well as the most important time for those participating in customary and traditional fishing, hunting, and gathering activities in southeast Alaska. We fear that people in communities and industries that depend on the natural forest landscape which are by far the largest economic drivers in the region, will be underrepresented if they cannot comment and attend public meetings due to the seasonal nature of their customary, traditional, and commercial activities. We therefore request that the comment period be delayed until after the fishing, hunting, and tourism seasons conclude, around November 2019.

We also believe the Forest Service has provided insufficient outreach and consultation opportunities for tribal governments. In an effort to adhere to a strict timeline, the Forest Service has provided little time for Tribes to participate as Cooperating Agencies and to review draft documents. Tribal engagement has been minimal and the Forest Service has not granted comment period extensions when Tribes have requested them. For example, the Organized Village of Kake—a federally recognized Tribe—was provided just two weeks to not only review a 500-page document outlining the options available, but also provide substantive comments within that timeframe.<sup>1</sup> It is unacceptable for the Forest Service to neglect Tribes' reasonable requests for extensions during an arbitrarily expedited rulemaking process. We ask that the Forest Service conduct a more robust tribal consultation process and provide the Tribes extensions unless the Forest Service can demonstrate an extension would hinder the review process.

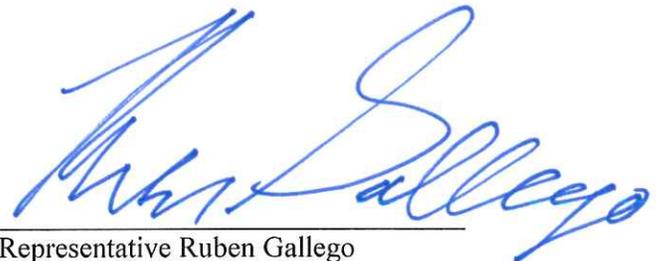

Given the widespread cultural, economic, and environmental impacts of such a decision, and the lack of any fact-based urgency about reducing recently-reaffirmed application of the Roadless Rule to the Tongass, the Department should significantly expand the scope of its engagement and ensure a more robust public comment period. To ensure this occurs, we ask the Department to delay the release of the Alaska DEIS until after the summer season in order to adequately engage people who are actively gathering food or work in fishing and tourism industries in the summer, and we ask the Department provide no less than 120 days for public comment on the DEIS. It is critical that all those affected by this dangerous proposal have an opportunity to be heard.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Maria Cantwell
United States Senator

Representative Ruben Gallego
Member of Congress

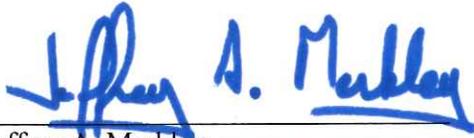

Tom Udall
United States Senator

Representative Raúl M. Grijalva
Member of Congress

<sup>1</sup> Jenkins, Elizabeth. "The Alaska Roadless Rule decision is moving along. Some tribal governments say it's moving too fast." Alaska Public Media. March 14, 2019. Available at: <https://www.alaskapublic.org/2019/03/14/the-alaska-roadless-rule-decision-is-moving-along-some-tribal-governments-say-its-moving-too-fast/>.

Jeffrey A. Merkley
United States Senator

Representative Diane DeGette
Member of Congress

Representative Debra A. Haaland
Member of Congress

Representative Jared Huffman
Member of Congress

Representative Alan S. Lowenthal
Member of Congress